

drink

my brain
vastly tiny
yet vast nonetheless
pencil ships cruise the waters
brain waters
soul waters
the waters push and pull
as you wish
as they wish
the obvious inertia of water and gravity
live weight
dead weight
if you're thirsty
find your water
drink

i often sit and watch the sun
it comes up every day
i often think about the world
it spins in powerful ways
sinking like a ship on sea
my sorrows lift and leave me
rain without water
love without fear
i sometimes look into your eyes
they capture all that is
i like to ride that graceful horse
that runs across the plains
earth opens
see who you are
be who you are
i often sit and watch the sun
it glows and spreads it's light i'll go to sleep and dream of life for life is dreams to come

my brain
vastly tiny
yet vast nonetheless
i often sit and watch the sun
it comes up every day
i often think about the world
it spins in powerful ways

pencil ships cruise the waters
brain waters
soul waters
sinking like a ship on sea
my sorrows lift and leave me
rain with out water
love without fear
the waters push and pull
as you wish
as they wish

i sometimes look into your eyes
they capture all that is
i like to ride that graceful horse
that runs across the plains
the obvious inertia of water and gravity
live weight
dead weight
earth opens
see who you are
be who you are
if you're thirsty
find your water
drink
i often sit and watch the sun
it glows and spreads it's light
i'll go to sleep and dream of life
for life is dreams to come....

---

music by charlie vaughan, lyrics by charlie vaughan and peter "sunwolf" wulsin

the performers
charlie vaughan; guitar and vocals sunwolf; vocals
tom gorton; trap set
afia walkingtree; djembe bodhi idarius; bass
ed randol; saxophone

about drink:
this song was a lot of fun to put together. I had created the basic guitar and drum part and really wanted to put some poetry to it. Sunwolf and I each read a poem and then traded two lines each. The outcome felt like a natural fit.